Vigilance of Forest Rangers in Crows Nest Reserve Prevents Serious Conflagration Sunday

Two Youths Tracked Fifteen Miles and Arrested on Way Back to Coleman—Fined on Charges of Setting Fires and Obstructing Trails

Here is a story of fifteen miles tracking of men by their footprints through the forest by rangers and securing indisputable evidence which convicted them of starting a fire in Crows Nest forest reserve.

On Sunday, July 30, while Ranger Boulton was travelling with Val Pelletier to the lookout on Ironstone Ridge south of Coleman, fire was discovered inside the log wall of an old building four miles south. It was spreading through the building and would have eventually developed into a big conflagration, with resultant extensive damage to standing timber.

Having extinguished the fire, evidence was discovered of two persons having made a temporary camp. A newly opened empty bean tin, empty snuff box, a partly smoked Buckingham cigarette, were found. The tracks of two persons were plainly seen leading to and away from the fire, which were followed by Ranger Boulton to the fork of York Creek.

Ranger Joe Kovach of Lynn Creek, several miles south, was telephoned to over the forest wire. He reported two men on horseback had passed, and was instructed to check up on their camp fire. As this party was returning and near Mile 15 the tracks of two persons were seen. These tracks were now returning in the direction of Coleman, and were followed to the summit of Lynn and York Creeks. A lot of trouble was experienced by Kovach and party owing to the trail being blocked with logs and debris in 22 places. They arrived at the summit about 5 p.m., six hours after the tracks were first discovered.

On instructions from Ranger Boulton, Pelletier left Ironstone Ridge lookout and went to the summit of York and Lynn Creeks, a distance of one mile from the lookout. Tracks of two persons, the same as those leaving the fire, were seen leading in the direction of Lynn Creek. Pelletier followed these to mile 9, then retraced his steps. At mile 7 he heard voices near Lynn Creek. Going back a short distance, he found that two persons were walking from Lynn Creek, and had been coming along the trail behind him. He immediately went to the lookout and telephoned Ranger Boulton, who had returned to Coleman. He started out with a truck, picking up Mr. Faublue to assist him.

Arriving at Mile 4½ Boulton met Pete Youschuck, aged 19, and Albert Hallock, aged 18, travelling towards Coleman. In answer to questions they said they had been looking for horses, and denied having set any fires. The prints of their boots were the same as those left at the fire and which had been tracked through the forest. They were placed under arrest and taken to Blaumore police barracks.

On Wednesday they appeared before Magistrate Gresham and fined $10 and costs each for setting the fire and $5.00 and costs for blocking or damaging government trails.

A. E. Smith, superintendent of Crows Nest and Bow River forest reserves, appeared for the forestry department; Ranger Boulton, Ranger Kovach, Val Pelletier, Carl Sopeta, and a companion were witnesses. These two were the horse men who were met by Ranger Kovach, and were called to give corroborative evidence.

The Roman Catholic church was recently painted by the men of the church, and the ladies donated the paint. Everyone was well pleased with the greatly improved appearance of the building.

One noticeable feature of the Federal government's camps for single unemployed is that men put on weight, while Red propaganda would keep them roaming the land and often going hungry.

Attention is drawn to the first warning advertisement, as a penalty of $200 and costs may be imposed for infraction of the provisions governing fire protection in the forests.

Ted Barnes, in from camp with several of the men on Saturday evening, was looking well and hearty. He has increased his waistline since going out, and a healthy tan on his face indicates that camp life is a good tonic. Charlie Robinson's cooking must be agreeing with the boys' digestive powers.

Crows Nest Pass Scouts will hold a flag day to help pay for the swimming pool at their camp north of town. The public is asked to support the boys in their efforts to establish a permanent site for their annual camp for the district Boy Scouts and Cubs.

Casting aside the cares of tax rolls, assessments and business affairs in general, J. Ford, town clerk, and his wife and son started on an auto tour to the coast on Saturday noon, and will be absent two weeks.

Two unemployed men went to the town office and asked Secretary Ford "what about this relief camp" in a manner that did not hit him just right. He told them they had better walk there and find out. Their attitude indicated they considered they were conferring a favor on someone by wanting to work for their keep.

W. Balloch Captures S. Alberta Tennis Singles Championship Lethbridge.

Coleman Club Makes Good Show in Big Tournament—Rough-and-Tumble Favorable Comment

LETHBRIDGE.—Great tennis was played in competition for the men's single championship, the contenders for the title being Bill Stark, Calgary, and Balloch, Coleman. Stark was the junior player, being 17, while Balloch had the advantage of a more seasoned player by about three years. Throughout the hard fought sets Stark did the more spectacular playing but Balloch had a nice reserve which finally won him the Southern Alberta championship. Stark played a steady backhand stroke while Balloch favored the forehand. A disagreeable wind proved annoying for both players, but throughout the five sets there was only one double foul called against each player. Balloch won the first set (love) and the second 6-4. Then Stark became steadier and won the third set 6-3. The fourth set was a real battle, going 6-8 in favor of Stark. The fifth and deciding set was won by Balloch 6-2, playing a cautious game and having the advantage of reserve energy.

Charlie Roughead was specially mentioned as Balloch's partner in the doubles, being referred to as a clever young lad. Other players from Coleman were Mrs. B. C. Short, R. Shone and George Jenkins.

A party of young people met at Nora McLeod's last evening in honor of her friend Allowyn Narraway of Edmonton, who is spending the school holidays here.

Nature's Laws

In these days much is said and written on the subject of planning—farm planning, industrial planning, social planning, financial planning. Economists both those who have made a life study of economic principles, trends and problems, and those who assume to speak on economics but have only a superficial knowledge of the subject, are talking and writing on the subject, and world conferences are wrestling with it. As a result, people are confused with the multiplicity of ideas advanced, as in the majority of cases, one set of ideas is contradicted by another set.

However, out of the confusion, there has come the suggestion that nations everywhere should reverse the process they have been following of increasing and expanding production and proceed to curtail production. So, we are told, farmers should reduce the acreage they are planting to wheat and cotton and coffee; miners should mine less copper, iron, silver, zinc and tin; smaller quantities of oil should be pumped from the bowels of the earth; fewer fish should be caught; less timber cut; smaller quantities of manufactured articles turned out.

The suggestion is an absurd one. The population of the world is steadily, even rapidly, increasing, and people want more of everything, not less. Why then produce less to meet their needs? The problem that calls for solution is not that there is too much wheat in the world, or that too much of it is being produced annually, but that certain countries for purely national reasons are denying to their people the right to import wheat and so doing are denying to them the privilege of cheap bread. And what applies to wheat, applies in varying degrees to all other products and commodities.

Nature with her immutable and inexorable laws has a way of controlling production. In this year of 1932 when the story of huge wheat surpluses is heard on every hand, Nature stepped in and reduced the wheat crop of the United States by two hundred million bushels, and struck tens of millions of bushels off the Canadian crop; and reduced the yield in other countries. Drought, and hail, and grasshoppers, and other insect pests took their toll, and as a result the world will not produce more wheat than its inhabitants require.

Suppose the acreage sown to wheat, for example, was arbitrarily cut-tailed by order of governments. Farmers would be obliged to summerfall the land not denied to prevent it becoming infested with weeds. It will be acknowledged that the more carefully and intensively the land is worked and cultivated, the greater the production per acre. Consequently, the almost certain result would be that larger average yields would be obtained, and the reduced acreage in crop would be offset to a considerable extent by the heavier yields. Therefore, even assuming that less wheat should be produced, reduction in acreage sown might not solve the problem. It may be admitted that there would be an economic saving to the farmer in increasing his yield per acre and sowing fewer acres. Possibly farmers should have followed this practice in the past, and should do so in the future, but not with the object of raising less wheat, but better wheat and more of it per acre at less cost to the producer.

And if man decided in his wisdom, or lack of it, to greatly reduce the production of wheat in any one year, Nature might likewise in that year enforce certain of her laws to bring about a reduction, with the result that man might easily find himself in dire need. Or Nature might offset the puny efforts of man and order climatic and other conditions which would more than offset all man's efforts to lessen production.

Man stands impotent when drouth comes and day follows day without rain; he is powerless when hail lashes his grain crops to the ground; he can wage but a futile battle when grasshoppers and other pests swarm over the land; he can do nothing if a blighting frost destroys. But Nature has her own ways and methods of control. When grasshoppers increase, a parasite develops which ultimately destroys the hoppers; when rabbits become unduly numerous, disease takes them off. Man may wage war against this or that, he may plan and seek to control, but in the final analysis Nature directs and controls.

There are men who in this day and generation propose to plan and control practically everything, who declare that old laws of supply and demand, of the survival of the fittest, are obsolete, and should be ignored, or overcome. These things, they say, are merely the laws of the jungle, which should have no place in our modern civilization. But the laws of the jungle are Nature's laws. In the jungle Nature rules supreme, and it is a jungle because no attempt is made to interfere with Nature.

Man may, and can, and does control some of the powers of Nature. Working with Nature he can bring about many improvements, and may even control Nature in some of its aspects and workings. But with many of Nature's laws and workings, man can exercise no control whatever. He cannot lengthen or shorten the seasons, he cannot determine the weather, he cannot order the earth to bring forth bountiful crops this year and less than normal crops next year. And he better not try to do it.

The real trouble with the world today is that man has tried to control Nature's law of supply and demand by setting up an intricate network of man-made restrictions, obstructions, barriers, prohibitions, which interfere with the natural working of that law. As a result man has put himself into a huge spider's web of his own making in which he is struggling in futile fashion. He can only free himself, not by a further defiance of and interference with Nature, but by destroying the web he has woven to his own undoing.

Jimmie Mattern Arrives In New York After Many Delays

New York—Smiling Jimmie Mattern came back Sunday to the field from which he started his flight around the world June 3, and blamed "that Russian oil" for his failure to complete it single-handed and in record time.

It was poor oil, he said, that brought him crashing down in the Siberian wilds June 14, wrecking his ship so completely that only the motor and instruments were salvaged.

The Texas aviator also said that five of the 19 days he wandered in the Siberian wastes before Eskimos found him and took him to Anadir are missing—just as if he never had lived them.

"I kept a diary of those days very carefully," he said, "and had a record of 14 days. But when I got out, I learned the time was 19 days. I don't know what happened to those other five days. But, then, the sun just rose and set around your head and you never knew where you were at."

Mattern landed at Floyd Bennett field at 3:45 p.m. after a flight from Toronto of four hours, 15 minutes.

A crowd estimated by airport officials at between 5,000 and 8,000 persons gave a prolonged cheer.

Two hours before Mattern arrived, a rescue ship that had flown to British Columbia a month ago to join in the search for the missing pilot landed at the field.

Ruling In Marriage Case

Alberta Court Determines Provincial Laws Governing Youthful Contracts

Calgary, Alberta—Alberta court of appeal has ruled any girl over 12 and any boy over 14 years of age may marry without their parents' consent as far as provincial laws are concerned, declaring such cases are exclusively under Dominion government control.

This judgment was handed down in Edmonton, Tuesday, during appeal court sittings and followed hearing of a case in which a mother attempting to have the marriage of her daughter annulled on the grounds both the daughter and youthful husband failed to obtain their parents' consent. The girl was 19 years of age and the boy 20.

The court held the marriage was valid in handing down judgment. A minority dissenting judgment was handed down by Mr. Justice Clarke.

Would Ship Butter To New Zealand

Vernon, B.C.—The Okanagan Valley Co-Operative Creamery would reverse the order of things and ship butter to New Zealand, taking in return lumber or fish. Directors of the company have petitioned the Minister of Trade and Commerce requesting him to try to arrange a shipment of Canadian butter to the antipodean dominion.

See Good Effects Resulting From The Ottawa Conference

London, Eng.—Re-affirmation of the agreements reached at the imperial economic conference held last year at Ottawa and the need for the ultimate restoration of an international gold standard are set forth in an important declaration signed by empire delegates to the World Economic Conference at a meeting held after the conclusion of the international gathering.

The declaration points to the necessity of higher wholesale prices and recognizes the importance of stability of inter-empire exchange rates in the interests of empire trade.

The announcement marks the conclusion of weeks of negotiation conducted in the strictest secrecy—sometimes in private houses and sometimes in cabinet offices in Whitehall—and is signed by representatives of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India. No signature was appended on behalf of the Irish Free State whose representative referred the matter to his government.

The delegates declared they were satisfied the Ottawa agreements had already had beneficial effects on inter-imperial trade and the benefits were likely to continue. They re-affirmed

High Commissioner

London Representative Has Not Standing Of Cabinet Minister
Ottawa, Ont.—Querries reaching Ottawa from British newspapers indicate that the question of the Canadian High Commissioner being a member of the Dominion Government is again under discussion in London. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner in London, is a member of the Canadian Privy Council as was his predecessor, Hon. Peter Larkin. As such he may attend a cabinet meeting but evidently in a quiescent capacity. The proposal being made that Canada's representative to the British Government should be a full fledged cabinet minister.

During the war Sir George Perley before he became high commissioner, represented Canada in London while a member of the Borden Government.

The argument has been advanced that a high commissioner could more effectively serve Canada if he had the authority of a member of the Dominion Government. Under the present arrangement, the high commissioner is responsible to the minister of external affairs, whereas if he were a cabinet minister he would be responsible to cabinet as are the holders of the other portfolios.

One suggestion made some time ago was that a member of the cabinet serve in London for two years and then be succeeded by another member, thereby always having a representative in close touch with Dominion affairs.

Viewed As Experiment

Believe Roosevelt Plan Would Not Be Success In Canada

Toronto, Ont.—Toronto business leaders said they did not believe the industrial recovery plan lines of that initiated in the United States by President Roosevelt would succeed in Canada. The United States plan of raising pay and shortening working hours, they said, could not be regarded otherwise than as an experiment.

C. H. Carlisle, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, said "I am not in favor of President Roosevelt's plan as a plan that would work permanently. If it works at all, it is a sort of anaesthetic for a bad case."

C. L. Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company, described the scheme as "dynamite." In his opinion, Mr. Burton said, "the less interference by the government with business the better for the wage-earner."

J. Allen Ross, president of the William Wrigley Company, differed. He said he thought the Roosevelt plan had a good chance of success, but admitted "the industrial set-up of this country is different."

Tokyo, Japan.—An investigation to determine whether Japan would be justified in contesting France's recently announced occupation of nine hitherto ownerless coral islands is being conducted by the foreign office. The islands lie between the Philippines and French Indo-China at 11 degrees north and 113 east.

Federal By-Elections

Vote In Three Constituencies To Be Taken This Fall
Ottawa, Ont.—Federal by-elections in three widely-separated constituencies will be held October 16, it was learned on the best authority.

In the Saskatchewan riding of MacKenzie a vacancy was created by the appointment of Milton Campbell, Progressive, to the tariff board. Yamaska, in Quebec, was vacated through the unseating of Alain Boucher, successful Liberal candidate in the 1930 elections, and the death of Maxime Cormier, Conservative, left a vacancy in Restigouche.

British Free Trade Leader Coming To Conference At Banff

London, Eng.—Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of the Free Trade group in the House of Commons and former Home Secretary will lead a British delegation to the conference of Pacific relations to be held at Banff, Alberta, this month, it was announced. Sir Herbert left for Canada July 28.

He will also attend a meeting of the Royal Institute of International Affairs to be held in Toronto, September 12. At this gathering it is planned to discuss some outstanding empire questions.

Grain Show Awards

Top Honors In Durum Wheat Go To Manitoba

Regina, Sask.—Final awards in wheat competition classes at the World's Grain Exhibition have been issued.

Axel Bergkvist, Sanford, Manitoba, captured top honors in the durum wheat class, with F. D. Trowell, Saltcoats, Saskatchewan, coming second.

Although Manitoba carried off first in the durum class, Saskatchewan took 19 places, the balance being scattered among the U.S.A., Alberta, Ontario, British Columbia, one going to Australia.

In the first soft red winter wheat class the first four winners went to the United States: A. M. Biennert, Victor, Mont., was second to Edson Smith, with Jay and E. M. Lawrence, Colton, Ohio, third and A. J. Laverty, Newton, Kansas, fourth. L. E. Petersen, Victor, Mont., was second to Thomas E. Smith in the hard red winter wheat, with third place going to Ralph T. Smith of Corvallis, and fourth to C. Edson Smith.

Fred Paschitag, Goodfellow, Alta., was second to Treble in the yellow oats, with Erich Anderson, Wembly, Alta., third, and Stanley M. James, Westlock, Alta., fourth. Eight of the awards went to Alberta, six to Saskatchewan, two to Scotland, and one to Quebec, United States and British Columbia.

Kidnapper Convicted

Death Penalty For Man Who Abducted Kansas Girl

Kansas City—Walter McGee, convicted leader of the gang that kidnapped Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager H. E. McElroy, and collected $30,000 ransom, was assessed the death penalty by a criminal court jury.

Formal sentence will be passed later by Judge Allan C. Souther.

The case was the first in which the extreme penalty has been assessed in the United States crusade against kidnappers.

It is one of the few in history to bring the death sentence where the victim of the kidnapping was unharmed.

The jury deliberated 3½ hours.

English Harvest Heavy

London, Eng.—Highly important in view of the British exports of agricultural produce to the British market is last week's estimate that the English harvest is likely to be the heaviest in 10 years. Wheat acreage has been increased by 200,000 acres under the government's quota arrangements.

tries like Canada, United States, Argentina and Australia, to come to an agreement upon the volume of production which they are to market. It seems to him one could limit production by the bankruptcy of the producer or by reason, and he preferred the latter.

The Prime Minister said no one was to blame. Uncontrollable conditions had arisen and "we might as well blame the Creator as the American Government."

"I am sure agreement is possible," he continued "but not in a hurry."

Mr. MacDonald who, earlier in the day preceded at the closing plenary session of the gathering, found in the conference "a whisper of the imperishable approach of world co-operation, an embodiment of the lit," "It's Coming Yet, For a That."

"It would have been a miracle," he said, "in view of the size of this conference, the nature of its business, the uncertain conditions of the world, had this one not been held up at some point. But do remember that to be held up is not to end. The obstacles are removable and they will be removed."

Referring to war debts, Mr. MacDonald said: "The nations of the world cannot carry their debts and the sooner we all recognize that the better."

The Prime Minister said one of the most interesting questions pursued by committees of the conference was whether it was possible, and if so, how to get the wheat producing countries like Canada, United States, Argentina and Australia, to come to an agreement upon the volume of production which they are to market. It seems to him one could limit production by the bankruptcy of the producer or by reason, and he preferred the latter.

There was universal agreement, he said, that the world wholesale prices of primary products should be raised. One of the reasons there was unemployment in Great Britain was because farmers in the United States, New Zealand, Australia and Canada had for a long time failed to get due reward for their labor.

"Meanwhile, busy men cannot be kept in London," he said, "and though certain committees will continue their work in full, meetings of the conference for the time being have to be deferred."

"Pray do not misunderstand me. No one is to blame. It was just that uncontrollable conditions arose, and we might as well blame the Creator as the American Government. Men responsible for the government of states have just to make the best of circumstances. The necessity for the recess came as one of the consequences of the effort that was being made to combat American conditions and it was unfortunate for the conference."

Mr. MacDonald noted that the conference was the biggest and the most representative that had ever assembled under one roof with 60 nations represented.

Britain Cannot Sell Aircraft To Germany

Britain Cannot Sell Aircraft To Germany

Would Be A Violation Of Paris Air Agreement

London, Eng.—Great Britain has informed Germany the British Government is unable to countenance the sale of British aircraft to Germany in violation of the Paris air agreement, Captain Anthony Eden, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons.

Captain Eden gave out information that Germany had sought to buy 26 to 50 British aircraft for police purposes but had been refused.

Takes First Place With Sample Of Reward Wheat

Regina, Sask.—Herman Treble, champion wheat grower of Wembly, with his sample of reward wheat, took first place and a prize of $1,500, in the class of 10 bushels of hard red spring wheat at the World's Grain Show. Alberta growers occupied the first six places in this class, and a total of 12 prizes out of 25 offered. Prize money going to Alberta in the 10-bushel hard red wheat class totalled $5,275, out of $6,000.

Proposed Crusade To Boost Trade Between Canada And Britain

London, Eng.—Proposal to send a group of distinguished Canadians, former members of the Canadian expeditionary force, under leadership of General Sir Arthur Currie of Montreal on a new empire trade crusade to the United Kingdom was put forward by Walter John S. Roper, president of the Canadian Legion.

This "crusade" to boost trade between Canada and the mother country was outlined by Major Roper in an address to the convention of the British Empire Service League during discussion of empire trade.

"Our appeal to the British people," declared Major Roper, "will be made directly on behalf of Canada's unemployed soldiers. At the appropriate time we propose to bring over to this country, with the co-operation and assistance of the British Empire Service League and of the British Legion, a group of our most distinguished soldier-citizens, statesmen, professional men, business men—group which will represent the very highest qualities in our national life."

"We propose to hold a series of meetings all over Great Britain where addresses will be made to the British people generally and to the trading and financial interests in particular.

General Sir Arthur Currie the commander of the Canadian corps during the war, now principal of McGill University, would lead the Canadian group, Major Roper revealed. The proposal had been endorsed, he added, by the Prince of Wales and approved by Dominion's Secretary J. H. Thomas, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London, and the empire council of the British Empire Service League.

"We propose at such a time to vividly recall the memories of 1914 to 1918" he went on. "We shall suggest that the magnificent spirit of loyalty and of service and sacrifice for king and country and empire ought not to be forgotten."

The object of the "friendly invasion" would be to impress on the people of Great Britain the virtues of purchasing from Canadian sources those goods they need from abroad and which Canada can supply, said Major Roper.

Under Sir Arthur Currie's leadership the trade ambassadors would appeal to the people in the name of those thousands of Canadian dead in France, Belgium and of other thousands mutilated in the Great War to rally to a new empire crusade declared Major Roper.

"The point we shall endeavor to drive home," he said, "is the fact that insofar as many of our men are concerned the war is not over yet, and that they are suffering even now from the terrible curse of unemployment in the land which they so faithfully served and without a shadow of doubt saved."

"What these men request and what they have a right to is to have work so that by their own industry they may carry on as they did before the war."

"But the duty is not ours alone. It lies fairly and squarely on the shoulders of every citizen of our great empire."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

SALESMANSHIP is a peculiar business. There are men who can develop the "art" to a wonderful degree, and convince people that what they have to sell has merits which the prospect never thought of, and after the salesman has departed he takes another think and wonders if he was mesmerized.

A FEW weeks since a gentleman came to the district, and convinced several business men that they could each buy fifteen dollars worth of time in a Calgary radio station, to advertise their towns and their respective businesses. Another gent convinced others that by paying him from $5.00 to $7.50 he would place their names on cards behind hotel bedroom doors. This also was calculated to increase business—for the gent who sold the cards. Even the printing was done in some place miles from where the advertisements were secured.

IT TAKES high pressure methods and not too fine a conscience to sell such "rackets." Human nature being what it is, there is always a field for the sharp salesmen who can never duplicate the same stunt in any district. Often the salesman with a genuine service or article to sell will be passed up, while the gent who has nothing to offer except self-interest and the chance to make easy money will get away with it quite easily.

SALESMANSHIP has helped to provide many needed things among thousands of people. Life insurance seldom sells itself, and there are washing machines sold by salesmen which never would have lightened women's burdens had they waited till they could afford to pay cash. Selling useful articles by easy instalments has been a boon to many, but—many a fish has been hooked into buying something which is useless as a toy balloon.

POLITICAL parties are preparing for an election. Hon W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, is campaigning in western Canada; the Dominion government has appointed a commission of six highly paid men to probe banking conditions, and James Shaver Woodsworth is leading the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, in an endeavor to cast aside old shibboleths and set up a new deal for the people. Premier Bennett is blamed for the continued depression which his election in 1930 was hoped would dispel.

NO party leader nor one country alone could cure the evils of depression. With many people believing the world owes them a living, while others were trying to obtain money which they never earned, by speculation, conditions were bound to get out of joint. Now after four years of so called hard times, which our forefathers would have considered fairly easy times, the mental attitude has undergone a change, and the majority realize that prosperity can only come through better directed effort on the part of every individual, and less paternalism on the part of governments. In the meantime President Roosevelt's program for national recovery will be observed with keen interest. The next problem there possibly will be to find something useful for the workers to do in their greatly increased leisure time. The Prohibitionists fear that there will be more time for the workers to drink beer.

LIFE is a process of change. He who makes up his mind that he will accumulate a nest egg and settle down to an easy life is more often than not doomed to disappointment. People with active minds and ambition do not contemplate a life of ease and inactivity. To look forward to old age as a period of ease and comfort may appeal to some, but to others it savors too much of being looked on as an old rusted piece of machinery for which there is no further use. When life ceases to be a pleasure and the joy of doing something useful each day loses its appeal, its time for a man to shuffle off to realms where he may enjoy peace and quietness undisturbed by the energy and activity of those who believe in doing things, no matter if they are seventeen or seventy.

THE school board had a knotty problem to solve. Many parents were equally desirous of having daughters appointed to a vacancy on the teaching staff. The board was divided in its support of applicants. Five out of over twenty applicants were selected and each given two months engagement. Some parents were disappointed, vociferous ratepayers said they would call a ratepayers meeting. The board to avoid showing partiality and personal criticism scrambled the job. Who wants to be a school trustee when it comes to appointing teachers from scores of local applicants?

Brighten the Path to Better Business

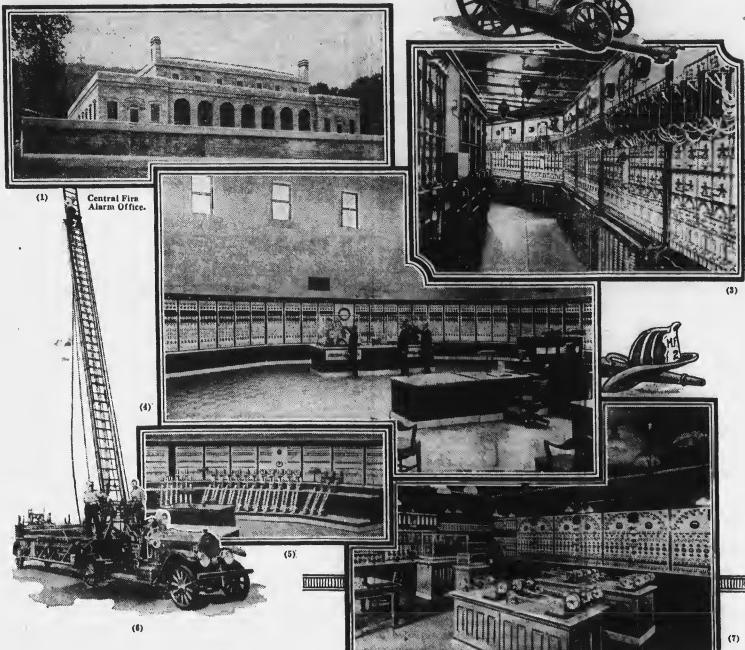

By Advertising in The Coleman Journal---It Goes Into the Homes---Read by the Whole Family---and Those Who Can't Read Have it Read to Them.

A man was searching around the sidewalk where two local painters are at work on a prominent store. Asked what he was looking for, he said he read in The Journal that they were able to work all day on the side of a building without dropping globs of paint on the sidewalk.

A trifling incident, maybe—but it shows how people remember things which appeal to their fancy. It shows that an obscure paragraph sticks in the public mind. It emphasizes the value of advertising in The Journal, for price interest and quality are always of interest to shoppers of both sexes.

A number of 2,000,000 was spent at the manufacture of toilet preparations, soaps and washing compounds in Canada in 1932. A recently issued official report states that the value of the former produced was $5,073,594, and of the latter $14,734,549.

Forty-five scouts of Oregon and Washington made the first leg of their 8,000 mile trip to Budapest in the Princess Katharine, Seattle to Vancouver. They are travelling C.P.R. across Canada to Quebec whence they will sail for England on the Empress of Britain.

Alaska and the Yukon hold their popularity as summer playgrounds judging by the sizable list of passengers sailing north to Skagway, Canada, Pacific coast lines. Most of them are mining and business men, the majority are summer tourists attracted by the rate reductions for summer Alaska travel.

Forty-three years of "active, loyal, and efficient service with the Canadian Pacific Railway closed June 30 with the retirement of W. A. Kittermaster, General Western Freight Agent, Chicago. He was succeeded by E. L. C. Campbell, General Freight Agent, and the office which the latter vacated was abolished.

For the first time since its foundation 25 years ago, a Governor-General of Canada was present at the annual closing of the Canadian Boys' Farm and Training School, Shawbridge, Que., recently, when the Earl of Bessborough, accompanied by E. Jasper National Park

Described As a Region Of Super Mountain Grandeur

Instituted twenty-five years ago, Jasper National Park from its inception has been justly popular with tourists. As a national park it is the largest reservation in Canada and a playground peculiarly fitted to man and all requirements. It is a region of superb mountain grandeur where peaks often lift its frosty head above the clouds, where the remnants of the last great Ice Age still lie in the thick fields upon the shoulders of the mountains and flow down in slow moving, frozen rivers or in leaping green streams to the valley below; a region of tremendous distances of high waterfalls, deep canyons, and black, sweeping cliffs; yet a region of green loveliness of grassy uplands and thick pine forests of emerald uplands bright with flowers, of lakes, pure and brilliant in color. An animal paradise, too, where many thousands of wild creatures roam un molested and unmolesing.

Not Much Change

Gold in families debate;
Gold does friendships separate;
Gold does civil wars create."

Founding Of Cunard Line

First Regular Steamship Service To Cross the Atlantic

Americans the world over are particularly interested in the birthday of the Cunard Line, founder of the first regular steamship service across the Atlantic, first because the date of July 4th happened to coincide with their own Independence Day, and secondly because the birth and growth of the steamship has played a major part in the development of America.

When the Cunard flag-ship "Britannia" sailed into Halifax on a short cruise from New York, her arrival marked the ninety-third anniversary of the foundation of the first regular Cunarder "Britannia" from Liverpool to America. From then on the history of the Line has been to a large extent the history of transatlantic shipping. The first Cunarder left Liverpool July 4th, 1840 bound for Halifax and Boston and covering the route in 14 days and 8 hours carrying 63 passengers.

So, immediately after the first regular service across the Atlantic, Cunard's services were known to be the best that first historic voyage except that it was successfully completed and when the steamer was being built her builder, Samuel Cunard, was received at Halifax and Boston, he was received with the wildest enthusiasm which expressed itself in hundreds of invitations to dinner and the presentation of a marvellous silver loving-up by merchants of Boston, commemorating the achievement.

Few Canadians realize that Sir Samuel Cunard was born in Halifax and even before founding the Line he had been a successful merchant. In 1830 amassed a huge fortune and was head of a fleet of sailing ships plying between Nova Scotia and the West Indies. Known as "Sam" for contributions made during the Crimean War, he died in London in 1864, in his 75th year, one of the world's great pioneers.

Cunard came of a United Empire Loyalist family and was one of the leading men in Nova Scotia for many years. The name of his family is still carried on in various parts of the Maritime provinces.

For the early days of the first fleet of four little steamers, the "Britannia," "Acadia," "Columbia," "Caledonia," the story of the Line as told in "Spanning the Atlantic" by F. G. Jackson, P. B. Pease and others, many celebrated passengers have crossed in famous Cunarders, including a less than passenger than Mark Twain, whose quaint account of his trip to Europe in 1867 is given in a letter he wrote to the "Acadian Recorder" of Halifax, and in his "Incidents Abroad."

It is interesting to know that the Cunarders were the first to obtain a monopoly in carrying Britons to America; to adopt new inventions in hull and engine constructions; to provide comfortable quarters for steerage passengers; to communicate by wireless from boat to land and to initiate in recent years the popular "tourist" class.

The story of the race for time, the record breaking, the desire to obtain a monopoly in carrying Britons to America; to adopt new inventions in hull and engine constructions; to provide comfortable quarters for steerage passengers; to communicate by wireless from boat to land and to initiate in recent years the popular "tourist" class.

Passengers have figured in several crises of Empire. Sir Sam was knighted for the services his ships gave Britain during the Crimean War, while the fleet also served during the Boer War, and the First World War; a war service which culminated in the magnificent record during the World War. The present Atlantic fleet of the Cunard and American Lines numbers twenty-two, from the giant "Peregrine" and "Aquitania" to the popular "A" steamers on the Canadian route.

Making Youths Sea-Minded

Another Task Which German Chancellor Has Set Himself

Making the younger German generations "sea-minded" is one of the multiple tasks which Chancellor Adolf Hitler has set himself. While he has not yet gone as far as the ex-kaiser with his famous phrase: "Our future lies on the water," which so aroused the British prior to 1914, he and his propaganda minister, Dr. Josef Goebbels, are losing no opportunity to bring the German navy before the eyes of the masses.

Should Advertise In Canada

If British goods, even with a tariff preference, are to find a proper market in Canada they will have to be advertised here. Canada is undertaking an advertising campaign in Britain and if the full benefits are to be reaped from the Ottawa agreements a similar campaign should be carried on this country behalf of United Kingdom and other Empire goods.

Horseshoes have been listed in Chile as a prime necessity and placed under government control.

Floating Conversion Loan

Federal Government Needs Large Sum To Meet Obligations

Preparations for the flotation of a huge conversion loan this fall will be undertaken by the Department of Finance at Ottawa after the return of Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, from London.

Possibly indications here are that the loan will be for at least 400 million dollars. Such a sum would gallop maturing this year, unmet care of the 170 millions of employment relief and the C.N.R. deficit with something left over for what may be needed for the present year's governmental operations. If the administration decides to invite conversions of obligations held by Canadians and due next year, the total would well exceed 400 millions.

It is understood here that Mr. Rhodes has taken advantage of his stay in England to consult British financial interests, possibly with a view to offering part of the loan in the London market.

Life In South Africa

Refreshments Seem To Take Up Large Part Of Day

G. H. Christian, from Pretoria, South Africa, a recent arrival who will make his home in Ontario, tells of the differences in Canadian and South African life. His children take kindly to the Canadian schools though they have been accustomed to the English medium or Afrikaans medium schools.

A routine day in South Africa begins with tea or coffee in bed at 6 in the morning, whether there are native servants or not to bring it, and continues with breakfast two or three hours later; coffee at 11 o'clock; mid-day dinner; tea or coffee at 4, supper at 6 or 7, and more tea and coffee and other refreshments at 9 o'clock or later. The government offices and business firms alike make regular provision for their employees going out to morning coffee or having it served in the building.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

RASPBERRY PARFAIT

2 teaspoons gelatin.
1 cup powdered sugar.
1 cup cream.
2 egg whites.
1/2 cup milk.
1 cup fresh raspberries crushed, sweetened to taste.

Salt.

Soak gelatin in a little milk and let stand for five minutes. Heat remainder of milk and pour over the gelatin. Add sugar, salt, stir until dissolved and set aside to chill. Whip cream, and add crushed raspberries. When gelatin mixture has thickened slightly, fold in the whipped cream and beaten egg whites. Turn into refrigerator freezing trays and freeze from two to three hours. Fill 2 pint trays. Serve with vanilla snap.

TOASTIES CHEWS

1/2 cup molasses.
1/2 cup light corn syrup.
2 teaspoons vinegar.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons butter.
4 cups Post Toasties.

Combine molasses, corn syrup, vinegar, and salt. Cook until small amount of syrup forms a hard ball in cold water (250 degrees Fahrenheit). Remove from fire and add butter. Pour slowly over Toasties. Mix well. Shape into 1-inch balls. Roll in moist, sweetened coconut if desired. Makes 3 dozen.

Tragedy of the Desert

California Business Man Dies When Trying To Reach Well

Another tragedy of the desert was revealed with the finding of the body of Stephen Carevich, 50, Redondo Beach, California, business man.

Carevich perished from thirst under a boiling sun after a desperate effort to reach a well 26 miles away, when his automobile broke down on the desert road to Niland, California.

With the temperature ranging from 110 to 115 degrees Carevich had walked and crawled five miles before collapsing.

Three companions attained the water well after a terrific struggle.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 6

RUTH

Golden Text: "Let us love one another; for love is of God."—1 John 4:7.

Lesson: The Book of Ruth.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 4:1-8.

Explanations and Comments:

Naomi and her Family in Moab. Chapter 1:1-5. During a severe famine in the time of the Judges, Naomi and her husband and two sons left Bethlehem and settled in Moab. There she married the son of a rich man, Orpah and Ruth. After a few years' sojourn in Moab, both sons died; Naomi was the sole survivor of her family; her daughters-in-law were her heirs. Naomi was determined to return alone to Bethlehem, for she heard that the famine there was over.

At the Parting of the Ways, Chapter 1:6-17. Naomi and her family were well-known tabor place in the same town, and Ruth and Orpah carried out the usual custom when they accompanied Naomi a short distance on her way. When Naomi thought they had gone far enough to show her respect she stopped to dismiss them. She bade each return to her own mother's house, and find a husband in her own land. "Behold, I deal kindly with you as ye do to me; besides, come with me"—thus she voiced her realization of their devotion to her and her sons. She kissed them farewell and then slept. As the young women both said they would return with her, she reminded them that they could not hope to secure husbands in her land. Orpah yielded, and turned back.

In our desire to honor the courage and truth of Ruth's devotion, we moderns are apt to do some injustice to Orpah. Poor Orpah is often contrasted with Ruth, as though she were a "Gretchen" or "Juliet" beside Cordelia. Cordelia is not so. Naomi was not a cold-hearted creature, with more prudence than affection, in her nature. In returning to her native land and leaving Ruth, she acted according to Oriental standards, wisely, and even—as both she and Naomi felt—in a true spirit of kindness. She had nothing to reproach Ruth with, and her in-laws-in-law had no cause to feel disappointed. Both Orpah and Ruth were kind folk as well as kinsfolk to Naomi.

Dirigible Coming Again

Graf Zeppelin Making Trips To New York In October

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin will make another flight to New York via South America in October if present plans materialize, Dr. Hugo Eckener said.

"Negotiations for the flight have not been completed yet," Dr. Eckener said. "It will be a passenger and mail flight, like our last trip to New York. We will follow our regular course from Friedrichshafen to Peru and then northward through the Andes and then northward to New York."

The Graf Zeppelin thus far has made 320 flights with a total of 6,000 flying hours. It has transported 8,200 passengers, 32,000 pounds of mail and 47,000 pounds of freight and covered about 400,000 miles. Included in these flights are about ten round trips to North and South America, of which three were made this year.

Shenfield, England, decided to clean its recent progress and beauty campaign by having an update made in the post office. An appeal to the government brought prompt action and a "new" box was installed. Inspection has revealed the letters "V.R." on the box showing that it had been made in the time of Queen Victoria.

What Sickness Costs Canada

It is estimated that the direct cost of illness to Canada is $21,000,000 per year. Almost nine-tenths of this is a direct charge on the individual.

In addition, it is calculated that the loss of future earnings by those who die prematurely amounts to another $1,000,000,000 so that the total annual cost of sickness and premature death reaches the figure of $1,311,000,000 annually.

It is indeed a poor man who says money is his best friend.

Saskatchewan Natural Gas

Drilling Commences In Dirt Hills Area Of Province

After $40,000 had been spent in testing the structure, Highway Services Limited, of Calgary, has pushed forward immediate plans for drilling for natural gas in the Dirt Hills. The company has secured a drilling interest in 14,000 acres approximately 30 miles south of Moose Jaw and 50 miles southwest of Regina.

A contract for drilling the first well has been given to the Sheldon Burden of Canada Limited, work has already commenced and actual drilling operations started.

The company is equipped and prepared to go to 4,000 feet if necessary but it is anticipated gas bearing strata will be reached long before that depth. The area has been tested geologically and geophysically and last year a thorough survey by the latest seismicographic method was undertaken.

The results confirmed previous investigation and if expectations are fulfilled a supply of natural gas easily available for both Regina and Moose Jaw should be developed by the fall months, the company says, in official statement.

A great deal of geological work has been done in this area, which has been favorably reported on by leading geologists, and the present development work is being undertaken as a result of a favorable report on the seismic survey made last fall by Geophysical Service Corporation of Dallas, Texas, which is the same company that did the work for the Norden Company on the Twin River structure, which has just recently completed its well.

President of the Highway Services Ltd. is A. W. Dingman, the father of gas and oil development in the district of Calgary and a pioneer in Turner Valley, to whom much of the subsequent development is due. The company is strong financially and well able to carry out its undertakings.

Japan Needs Markets More Than Territory

China Trade Is Necessary To Support Growing Millions

Japan last year added more than a million to her population in the home islands. She now has as many people as Germany on a territory only six-fifths as large; and Germany is among the most crowded of nations. There is only one other big power that registers such annual gains, and that is Russia. The annual increment is about 2,500,000 for a population two and a half times as large as Japan's. The latter has a death rate twice as high. Birth control in Japan is as yet unknown.

It does not follow that population pressure in Japan justifies recent methods in territorial expansion. Emigration is comparatively a trifle and cannot solve her problem. Her growing millions can be supported only by progressive industrialization and growing foreign markets. In this sense Japan needs the good-will and trade of the Chinese people more than she needs Chinese territory.

Canadian National Steamships Offered Cut Rates To Newly Weds Before Mussolini

Premier Mussolini last year offered a ten per cent reduction for honeymooners on Italian airways but a few months before his cut-rate was introduced the Canadian National Steamships had come to the rescue of newlyweds in Canada, according to Thomas Cree, passenger manager. The company had announced a fare reduction of ten per cent, available to all couples sailing within a week of their wedding day and the offer is effect again this year.

Abolishing the Slums

For England and Wales the Minister of Health has launched a campaign to wipe out the slums in five years. In Scotland the Department of Health is at present working on a three-year program which is operating with great success. Scotland has outstripped England and Wales in slum clearance.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful student in art school, impulsively stretches the head of a fellow student during class and when she is supposed to be drawing a Greek urn. The professor, looking at her sketch, embarrasses her by having Peter Arson, the boy whom she sketched, criticize her work before the class. Afterwards Camilla goes to the park outside to cry. A hand touches her shoulder.

(Now go on with the story)

CHAPTER II.

"Miss Hoyt," a man's vibrant voice pleaded, "may I apologize? I'm sorry if I offended you in class today."

Camilla dabbed frantically at her teary eyes with a square of bright linen, then raised her head reluctantly. She could not meet Peter's eyes.

"Well, if you think I'm crying about that," she finally managed in a husky voice that stung with sarcasm, "you need not trouble to apologize. You presume a lot to think I even remembered it, don't you?"

"Oh—'I'm sorry,' he hesitated. "But if you are in trouble—that is—may I help you?"

To his amazement and relief, she laughed suddenly and looked up into his face as he bent over her anxiously. Her tear-wet eyes dazzled him, wide and shining like a child's and the tumbled black hair was like a cloud around her laughing face where the sun had just appeared.

A man in livery opened the door and scrutinized him.

"Well, my trouble isn't sketching still-life objects," she said, "but don't worry about me. I'm all right. Just the blues, I guess."

His eyes twinkled with a spontaneous humor and he sat down on the bench beside her. "What kind of blues—Limhouse, St. Louis or any particular brand? I might know the 'knew.'"

"Just the blackie-blues. Now there's an idea for a new blues song. If your ambitions to write a radio hit?"

He shook his head, smiling. "I need all my inspiration for clay figures."

"Oh," her voice held awe. "You're a sculptor."

"Well, that's what I want to be. It happens that I've studied with Professor Drake before, and am finishing next month. I only went into this sketch class for critical training."

"No wonder you laugh at us."

"Not at all. You have me wrong, Miss Hoyt. I wasn't laughing at you, really."

"Laughing with me, then?" she suggested, with a roguish tilt of her chin.

Peter chuckled with relief. "That's better," he declared. "Whose head were you sketching the profs?"

"No—yours."

"Mine?"

"Yes. I think it is a beautiful head and I couldn't resist sketching it. Besides, it was right in the way so I couldn't see the old study-object, anyway."

"Who doesn't know? Sure, I'll be seen you then."

"Because I didn't care about sketching still-life, anyway. I much prefer living models."

"You'll get that next year."

"There'll be no next year here. I'm not studying to be a famous artist with immortal ambitions and all that."

"I didn't suppose you were," he admitted, suddenly more aloof. "The idea that anyone could be serious about ambition probably amuses you."

She hesitated a moment before replying thoughtfully. "Not at all. It impresses me, very much." Her earnestness seemed to reassure him.

"And you are serious aren't you?"

"Dead serious!" Peter insisted, then changed the subject abruptly. "But I'm just as serious about something else that I'd rather talk to you about, but don't laugh at me even if you do refuse me. Will you let me entertain you some evening?"

He misinterpreted her quiet look of surprise and her hesitation. "Now I am presuming a lot, I know."

"Don't why, no, of course not. Please don't think I—"

Her chance, perhaps the only one chance he would have to talk with her. He inserted his finger into his vest pocket, knowing that a lone five-spot was folded there. It represented his week's allowance for food. His thoughts leaped fearfully to a small deposit in his name at the bank, put there thrifly and with sacrifice, to meet emergencies. Peter smiled ruefully. Was this an emergency? It was, and it wasn't. If he could bring his conscience to admit the first thought and deny the second—

By eight o'clock, he had soothed his conscience, withdrawn half of his emergency fund—he had pledged himself to return at least half of it to the bank the following day, but he had to flash a roll, didn't he?—rented a tuxedo and a taxi-cab, and was ringing the doorbell at the imposing Hoyt mansion across the park from the art school.

A man in livery opened the door and scrutinized Peter with practiced caution.

Danish Capital Is Lively

Copenhagen Has Shown No Sign Of World Depression

Refreshing sights are seen in Copenhagen, the only one of the world's notoriously sprightly cities which has not become a whit less sprightly since the rainy days of '29.

The Prime Minister, Herr Staun, sitting in a night club after midnight, perhaps the only prime minister in the world who doesn't allow the care of state to depress him.

Copenhagen's gallant bicycle parades dash along Oesterbrogade at 5 p.m. A ravishingly beautiful cotton-headed blond, a dapper army captain in khaki, a mailman with a flashing red coat, two police officials in blue and gold grad, a half-dozen pink-cheeked schoolgirls, a portly woman with a Mexican hairless riding in a basket attached to the handlebars and yipping at a great Dane on the sidewalk. College students wearing glasses and carrying brief-cases two young ladies highly powdered and rouged.

"Why — anywhere you wish," vaguely.

"I'd rather you would say. I don't know you very well, and what you like to do. I want to take you wherever you like most to go."

Camilla reflected briefly. She was weary of the round of theatres, night clubs and parties frequented by her crowd, and would like to suggest some very simple and inexpensive pleasure. But she didn't dare. She might frighten him away by being pishian, which she delighted to do with some men of her acquaintance.

But she had no wish to frighten Peter away, now that he was so near her and actually seemed to be interested. She would wait, she resolved, until she knew him much better, to tell him about herself. By that time, it might just possibly that he would not be frightened away by her confession.

She said casually, "well — 'Too Many Girls' is playing at the Majestic. You may just be lucky enough to get tickets yet for tonight. And there's the Maddox club for supper, if you prefer famous food and hot music to hot food aid famous music."

Peter stood up to cover his confusion. Both the food and the music were of minor importance to him. But if those expensive items were the price tags for Camilla's company, he would have to meet them, somehow. "Fine! I'll run along now and phone for reservations," he attempted elaborate "sangroid." "Shall I call for you at eight?"

"You know where I live?"

Speeding In Former Years

Twenty Miles An Hour Drew Fine 35 Years Ago

An issue of a Kingston newspaper of the year 1900 tells of a police court case in which the late B. W. Folger, one of Kingston's leading citizens and a horse owner, was fined ten dollars and costs for speeding on the streets with his fast driver. Evidence was given to show that Mr. Folger was driving at a three-minute clip, or at about twenty miles an hour. W. F. Nickle, nephew of Mr. Folger, and then a young lawyer, defended the accused, and gave notice that he would appeal the decision of the magistrate.

But what a change in conditions! Now automobiles dash through the city streets at rates decidedly in excess of twenty miles an hour and there are relatively few summons issued for speeding. Thirty-three years ago a great commotion was caused when a citizen allowed his driving horse to make twenty miles an hour on the macadam roads, there being no paved roads then. Perhaps there would be a hubbub today if a racing horse was driven along a street at a twenty-five-mile clip.

Today, which in any other country would be just another amusement park, swarming with Copenhageners anxious to waste their money on roulette wheels, and a very attractive booth where one throws wooden balls at plates and scoop tureens.

The traditionally lively Copenhagen newspapers, dividing their front pages between the world economic conference and a sensational murder case, the only flaw in which seems to be that no one is sure whether a murderer really took place.

The canal at Gammel Strand full of fishing boats and floating fish wells in which swim thousands of flounders and eels. The famous row of fisher-women, cruelly skinning live eels and shouting at the noonday customers.

A nail driven into the counter of a hotel bar near Maidenhead Bridge, England, indicates the boundary of two counties, and customers on the Buckingham side can be served a half-hour later than those on the Berkshire side.

Mrs. Patience Round, who recently celebrated her 102nd birthday in Cradley Heath, England, was a chain maker for 70 years.

Ancient Structure

Interesting Discovery Made By Excavations In Mexico

Excavations in the heart of Mexico have disclosed an ancient structure like a Mayan temple.

Archaeologists were unwilling to pronounce it definitely of Mayan origin, but nevertheless said it might be such and intimated their present theories might be upset regarding the tribe which inhabited the Yucatan peninsula and Central America, and disappeared mysteriously about the 14th century.

Had Good Reason

Two men who had attended the village church were discussing the service.

"The vicar certainly preached a wonderfully strong sermon on vanity and extravagance," said one.

"Yes; and his own wife, sitting right in front of him, wearing her new dress and new hat," put in the other.

"Oh," said the first, "that explains it! I wondered why he was so worked up."

Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver and family of Blairmore spent two weeks holiday in Edmonton and at Cold Lake, about 200 miles northeast, on the border of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Mr. Oliver states there is splendid lake trout fishing there, the record being a 52½ lb fish. He says it is almost a fisherman's paradise, and you catch 'em by trolling. When one gets on the hook you think you have struck a snag.

The manifesto declaring the policy of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, of which J. S. Woodsworth is the leader, does not receive the enthusiastic support of farmers. The farmer is an individualist, and does not look with favor on state socialism. The C. C. F. policy if carried into effect would leave Canada the wreckage of its present constitutional system, with nothing substantial to replace it. Mr. Woodsworth's dreams are beyond the practical.

"There is little prospect of any great change at the present time. There may be some agreement as to the future of world war debts, but taxes on industry—higher taxes—are bound to come, especially if some of the wild schemes to feed a great proportion of the population from the public tax trough becomes real. The more people fed by tax money, the higher taxes must become."—Quoted from R. T. Porte, Frankling Printing Co., on conditions in the United States, and which might well apply to Canada.

Beware of the man who is always trying to do something cheaper than anyone else. Good workmanship and quality goods are always worth a fair price. They enable fair wages to be paid. The sweatshop artist demoralizes wage scales for employers and employed who strive to maintain a fair standard of living. Selling goods or services below cost of production inevitably brings ruin to the workers, and reduces their purchasing power to the vanishing point. It works in a vicious circle which none can escape.

Answer to Question on Front Page

The front wheels of an automobile travel farther than the rear wheels—the difference being in the greater swing of the front wheels around a corner. In heavy city traffic, owing to the relative fewness of left turns, the left front wheel travels farther than the right.
